FRENCH TEAR FRESH HOLES

Foch Shifts Attack on Somme to South.

BERLIN ADMITS LOSS OF CLERY

Violent Fighting Continues Around Erzerany—Roumanians Claim All of the Dobrudja Frontier East of the Danube.

London, Sept. 7.—While their compatriots were busy north of the Somme warding off German counter-attacks or engaged in artillery duels, the French south of the river drove their men farther into the German lines for noteworthy gains.

In stubborn fighting over a front of four miles between Verdunviller and Chilly the Germans have been forced to give up the northern portion of Verdunvillers.

The French occupied the outskirts of the railway junction town of Chaumes and threw their forces along the railway running from Chaumes to Roze, between Chaumes and Chilly.
To the north the operations of the French, with Barleux and ultimately Peronne as their objective, also met with success. Southeast of Belloy-en-Santerre further German trenches were captured and most of the village of Barne-en-Santerre is in French hands.

Paris says the number of prisoners taken apparently was large.

Loss of Clery Admitted.

Berlin admits the loss of Clery, which lies a short distance northwest of Peronne.

In Galicia, on the front of the Zlota Lipa and Dniester rivers, the Russians drove the Teutonic allies from fortified positions and captured 4,500 prisoners, among them about 2,000 Germans. Berlin concedes a victory to the Russians in this region.

Violent fighting continues around Erzerany, southeast of Lemberg, but here Berlin says the Russians have suffered heavy losses and have made no advance. Russian attacks near Zborow, Northern Galicia, and in Volhynia also failed. Fighting still is going on in the Carpathians, where the Russians claim the capture of additional heights.

In the Roumanian theater German and Bulgarian troops are still engaged with the Roumanians in the Dobrudja region. Berlin reports the capture of seven of the Tutrakan works, together with their armored batteries.

The Roumanians claim that they have retaken all the Dobrudja frontier east of the Danube, between Bulgaria and Roumania. The towns of Isacel and Kalafat, on the Danube, have been bombarded by the Teutons.

Russians in Turkish Armenia continue their progress against the Turks near Ognott, inflicting heavy casualties on them, according to Petrograd.

On the Macedonian front only bombardments are in progress.

In Albania the Italian advance has been stopped, Berlin says, and the Teutonic allies have recaptured all positions taken from them recently east of Avlona.

SANTA FE ROAD WILL IGNORE ACT

Ripley Declares Higher Wages
Will Not Be Paid.

AWAITS DECISION OF COURT

President of Southern Railway Characterizes Law as Merely a Wage Advance Passed Under Threat of
the Brotherhoods.

Topeka, Kan., Sept. 7.—E. P. Ripley,
president of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railway, declared in a formal statement that the Santa Fe does not intend to comply with the Adamson
eight-hour law, recently enacted by congress to avert a threatened railroad strike, until ordered to do so
by the United States supreme court.

He declared that the so called eight-
hour law was nothing more than an advance of 20 to 25 per cent in wages
to the men who receive the most money
in the railway service.

"Congress, hastily acting under a threat of four leaders of labor organizations," Mr. Ripley said, "enacted a so called eight-hour law, which is
nothing more or less than an advance
of 20 to 25 per cent in the wages of the best paid men in railway service.
"It is only fair to the public and to
our employees to say that the Atchison,
Topeka and Santa Fe Railway com-

Congress Expects to Adjourn Tonight

(By United Press)

Washington, Sept. 7.—Congress is expected to quit work and adjourn this evening or tomorrow, after a nine months' session in many ways breaking all legislative records, especially smashing all records in appropriations.

It has passed the drastic retaliatory measure as a part of the revenue bill by which the president is empowered to use the army and navy to uphold the rights of American citizens against blacklists and interference with the mails.

It passed the eight hour law for railway employees engaged in operating trains, thereby averting a nation-wide strike.

gers and the crew are aboard, but are not in any peril the officials say.

Marquette steamer No. 3 has been refloated and the fifty passengers and the crew were taken off by the coast

joint commission held their first forbrera, head of the Mexican member-

Arranging details of the coming though Secretary Franklin K. Lane, chairman of the American commission, indicated that there might be some discussion of the subjects to be reviewed later in the day.

When the commissioners assembled it had not been determined just who might attend the conferences in ad-

James Linn Rodgers, special agent of the state department in Mexico City, who was summoned north for the meetings, may participate.

SANTA FE ROAD WILL IGNORE ACT

Ripley Declares Higher Wages
Will Not Be Paid.

AWAITS DECISION OF COURT

President of Southern Railway Char-
acterizes Law as Merely a Wage Advance Passed Under Threat of
the Brotherhoods.

Topeka, Kan., Sept. 7.—E. P. Ripley,
president of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railway, declared in a formal
statement that the Santa Fe does not intend to comply with the Adamson
eight-hour law, recently enacted by
congress to avert a threatened railroad strike, until ordered to do so
by the United States supreme court.

He declared that the so called eight-
hour law was nothing more than an
advance of 20 to 25 per cent in wages
to the men who receive the most money
in the railway service.

"Congress, hastily acting under a
threat of four leaders of labor organizations," Mr. Ripley said, "enacted a
so called eight-hour law, which is
nothing more or less than an advance
of 20 to 25 per cent in the wages of
the best paid men in railway service.

"It is only fair to the public and to
our employees to say that the Atchison,
Topeka and Santa Fe Railway company does not intend to comply with the law until ordered to do so by the court of last resort."

N. P. TELEGRAPHERS STRIKE IS AVERTED

St. Paul, Sept. 7.—Members of the Railway Telegraphers' union on the Northern Pacific railroad have won a substantial increase in pay, with liberal allowances for overtime, shorter hours and several other working advantages from officials of the road, ending numerous conferences between officials of the union and road officials.
A strike vote had been taken, which was said to be largely in favor of a walkout in case negotiations for settlement were not successful.

Announcement of the settlement followed a conference between E. J. Man-lon, grand vice president of the telegraphers' union; George T. Slade, vice president of the road, and Martin H.
Clapp, superintendent of telegraph.
The new scale of wages and overtime regulations will become effective as soon as the schedules can be prepared, probably Oct. 1.

An average increase of $4 a month is given to all men on the system. Operators at the larger terminals such as St. Paul, Minneapolis, Fargo, Helena, Spokane and Tacoma are given increases ranging from $5 to $7.50.

Increases for overtime outside the larger terminals of from 30 to 35 cents an hour also were granted, and operators in the larger terminals set increases of from 45 cents an hour to 50 cents.

Result of Prohibition Election in Yu-

Dawson, Yukon, Sept. 7.—Official censed hotel, the only form of saloon now allowed in the territory.

The mining districts almost without exception voted for prohibition.

The records of the surrogate courts
of New York state show that eighty-
two of every hundred die leaving no
income producing estate, that of
every hundred widows only eighteen
are left in good comfortable circumstances, forty-seven others are obliged to work and often lack the
ordinary comforts of life, while thirty-five are left in absolute want
and must depend largely upon charity to live. It is learned that those who own homes seldom come to want. If you have no home you better see Nettleton. P. B., whose business it is to furnish homes on terms
one can afford. This suggestion is well meant but of no earthly value
unless followed by action. This should be pondered by the women

HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL

Dope Ladled Out on the Situation
This Season—"Mexie" Mahlum Slated for Coach

The school bell sounded out clear
and sharp through the foggy air that briek September morn and slowly but surely the masses of students wended their way to the school house and its
halls of learning. Many bright-eyed freshies came tripping along
like the chill breeze with faces all
aglow for they were no longer
"children" but "young men and women" about to enter high school and
reap the benefits stored away for them in that institution.

Along with these dancing "Freshies" came the upper set who regarded school as a duty in order that teachers might live rather than a
great privilege as did the younger generation. Intermingled with the upper classmen came the war-
scarred veterans of some two or three years. All bore marks of the past fray—basket ball, football, baseball
or some other athletic contest.

Listening to their conversation we gathered the following facts: "Mexie" Mahlum is going to be the coach of
the 1916 football team which is bound to be bigger and better than ever and which under the coaching ability of Mr. Mahlum ought to cop the championship "raz" of this district. As the great majority know,
Mr. Mahlum is captain of the 1916
football team of Georgetown University.

Another eye-opener which makes
the red blood tingle through the
veins of the people of the athletic
kind is that Harold Marken, halfback on the Akeley team, the team that held Brainerd to an 0 to 0 score
last fall, was going to school in Brainerd and will be one of the standbys of the B. H. S. eleven.

A certain Mr. Lawrence of eastern fame, is reported to be enroute for Brainerd to complete his high school course. From reports which have been preceding the man's arrival he
is one of the few all-around high school athletes to be found.

"Stick" Warner, Larson, McComas,
Reis, Falconer and some more men
of gridiron fame will be back at the
old game with the same old stride
and the war-paint on an inch thick.

Practice is expected to start next
week and anybody wishing to harden
up, get a little practice, work off a little superfluous fat, help the boys
along, any or all are welcome at the Koering field any night during practice.

Let's drink (water) to the health
of the 1916 Blue and White football team and wish them luck that they may be the "Lions of the Gridiron"
this year.

A Tribute to Woman.

When everything around a man stag-
gers and wavers, when all seems dark and dim in the far distance of the unknown future, when the world seems but a picture or a fairy tale and the universe a chimera, when the whole structure of ideas vanishes in smoke
and all certainties become enigmatical,
what is the only permanent thing
which may still be his? The faithful heart of a woman. There he may rest
his head; there he will renew his
strength for the battle of life, increase
his faith in Providence and, if need
be, find strength to die in peace with
a benediction on his lips.—Henri Frederic Amiel.

SENATE IN FIGHT
OVER OWEN BILL

Near Craft Charges Bring Solons
to Verge of Battle.

LIE IS PASSED BY ASHURST

Corruption Measure Starts Turmoil
in Upper Body—Author Is Determined to Fight for Act Until Leaders Force Adjournment.

Washington, Sept. 7.—While the senate was writing on the revenue bill
conferred the Owen corrupt practices
bill was taken up and made the vehicle for several hours of acrimonious
debate.

Republican and Democratic senators
indulged in personal exchanges and regaled their fellow senators with accounts of campaign contributions and
the reward given some contributors
in the past.

The vote to take up the bill was 32
to 14, nine Republicans voting with
the majority to consider the measure
and seven Democrats voting against it.
Senator Owen, its author, cancelled a speaking engagement before the Ohio Democratic convention to remain
here and fight for its adoption.

Looks Like a Fight.

Senators Curtis of Kansas, Republican, and Ashurst of Arizona, Democrat, furnished the excitement of the day's debate in an interchange which
looked for a few minutes as if it might
result in a personal encounter.

The bill would restrict campaign expenditures of candidates for the senate, the house and for the presidency
and vice presidency to a greater extent than under existing laws. Senator Curtis argued that such a measure passed when a campaign is half over
might work unfairly against men who already have spent the stipulated amount.

He advocated a more stringent law
than that proposed, and one that would particularly restrict the use of congressional frank. He read a letter from Senator Ashurst to a constituent reciting his record as a basis
for support and said he understood that 70,000 of these had been franked
out.

"If the senator charges that this is a violation of the law," Senator Ashurst said, when he got on the floor,
"he has sweethearts for brains."

He explained that his letter had
been submitted and approved by the
postmaster general and one of his
assistants as being matter which could
be franked.

Curtis' Nose Imperiled.

Calling Senator Curtis the "Pharisee
from Kansas," and brushing aside several chairs, he strode across the center aisle and shook his finger under Senator Curtis' nose. Senator Smoot, seated just between the two, moved back in mock alarm as Senator Ashurst approached. Senator Curtis smiled but kept his seat.

A little later Mr. Ashurst turned on Senator Penrose who said he had
noticed a "copper lobby" around the Capitol whose members had been talking with the Arizona senator.

"If," Mr. Ashurst said, "the senator means to say that my vote has been
influenced by a copper lobby or any other lobby he lies."

Several senators objected to this
language and Senator Ashurst after
explaining he had said "if," agreed to withdraw his remark.

The records of the surrogate courts
of New York state show that eighty-
two of every hundred die leaving no
income producing estate, that of
every hundred widows only eighteen
are left in good comfortable circumstances, forty-seven others are obliged to work and often lack the
ordinary comforts of life, while
thirty-five are left in absolute want
and must depend largely upon charity to live. It is learned that those
who own homes seldom come to
want. If you have no home you better see Nettleton, P. B., whose business it is to furnish homes on terms
one can afford. This suggestion is
well meant but of no earthly value
unless followed by action. This
should be pondered by the women
folks.—Advt. 11

HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL

Dope Ladled Out on the Situation
This Season—"Moxie" Mahlum

Slated for Coach

"The school bell sounded out clear
and sharp through the foggy air that brisk September morn and slowly but surely the masses of students wended
their way to the school house and its
halls of learning. Many bright-
eyed freshies came tripping along
like the chill breeze with faces all
aglow for they were no longer

"children" but "young men and wo-
men" about to enter high school and
reap the benefits stored away for
them in that institution.

Along with these dancing "Fresh-
ies" came the upper set who regarded school as a duty in order that
teachers might live rather than a
great privilege as did the younger generation. Intermingled with the upper classmen came the war-
scarred veterans of some two or three years. All bore marks of the past
fray—basket ball, football, baseball
or some other athletic contest.

Listening to their conversation we gain the following facts: "Moxie" Mahlum is going to be the coach of
the 1916 football team which is
bound to be bigger and better than
ever and which under the coaching ability of Mr. Mahlum ought to cap the championship "rag" of this district. As the great majority know,
Mr. Mahlum is captain of the 1916
football team of Georgetown University.

Another eye-opener which makes
the red blood tingle through the
veins of the people of the athletic
kind is that Harold Marken, halfback on the Akley team, the team
that held Brainerd to an 6 to 6 score
last fall, was going to school in Brainerd and will be one of the
standbys of the B. H. S. eleven.

A certain Mr. Lawrence of eastern fame, is reported to be enroute for Brainerd to complete his high school
course. From reports which have
been preceding the man's arrival he
is one of the few all-around high
school athletes to be found.

"Stick" Warner, Larson, McComas,
Reis, Falconer and some more men
of gridiron fame will be back at the
old game with the same old stride
and the war-paint on an inch thick.

Practice is expected to start next
week and anybody wishing to harden
up, get a little practice, work off a
little superfluous fat, help the boys
along, any or all are welcome at the Kearney field any night during practice.

Let's drink (water) to the health
of the 1916 Blue and White football team and wish them luck that they
may be the "Lions of the Gridiron"
this year.

A Tribute to Woman.

When everything around a man stag-
gers and wavers, when all seems dark
and dim in the far distance of the unknown future, when the world seems but a picture of a fairy tale and the universe a chimeria, when the whole
structure of ideas vanishes in smoke
and all certainties become enigmatical,
what is the only permanent thing
which may still be his? The faithful heart of a woman. There he may rest
his head; there he will renew his
strength for the battle of life, increase
his faith in Providence and, if need
be, find strength to die in peace with
a benediction on his lips.—Henri Frederic Amiel.

Disagreement.

"I heard Billings forced his daughter into a marriage with a rich creditor—practically sold her."
"That's queer. The newspaper accounts of the wedding gave her away."

OVER OWEN BILL

Near Craft Charges Bring Solons
to Verge of Battle.

Corruption Measure Starts Turmoil
in Upper Body—Author is Determined to Fight for Act Until Landers Force Adjournment.

Washington, Sept. 7.—While the senate was writing on the revenue bill
conferred the Owen corrupt practices
bill was taken up and made the vehicle for several hours of acrimonious
debate.

Republican and Democratic senators
indulged in personal exchanges and
replied their fellow senators with accounts of campaign contributions and
the reward given some contributors
in the past.

The vote to take up the bill was 32
to 14, nine Republicans voting with
the majority to consider the measure
and seven Democrats voting against it.
Senator Owen, its author, cancelled a speaking engagement before the Ohio Democratic convention to remain
here and fight for its adoption.

Looks Like a Fight.

Senators Curtis of Kansas, Republican, and Ashurst of Arizona, Democrat, furnished the excitement of the
day's debate in an interchange which
looked for a few minutes as if it might
result in a personal encounter.

The bill would restrict campaign expenditures of candidates for the senate, the house and for the presidency
and vice presidency to a greater extent than under existing laws. Senator Curtis argued that such a measure
passed when a campaign is half over
might work unfairly against men who
already have spent the stipulated
amount.

He advocated a more stringent law
than that proposed, and one that
would particularly restrict the use of
congressional frank. He read a letter from Senator Ashurst to a con-
stituent reciting his record as a basis
for support and said he understood
that 70,000 of these had been franked
out.

"If the senator charges that this is a violation of the law," Senator Ashurst said, "when he got on the floor,
"he has sweetbread for brains."

He explained that his letter had
been submitted and approved by the
postmaster general and one of his
assistants as being matter which could
be franked.

Curtis' Nose Imperiled.

Calling Senator Curtis the "Pharisee
from Kansas," and brushing aside several chairs, he strode across the senate aisle and shook his finger under Senator Curtis' nose. Senator Snoot,
seated just between the two, moved back in mock alarm as Senator Ashurst approached. Senator Curtis sniffed but kept his seat.

A little later Mr. Ashurst turned
on Senator Penrose who said he had
noticed a "copper lobby" around the Capitol whose members had been talking with the Arizona senator.

"If Mr. Ashurst said, 'the senator
means to say that my vote has been
influenced by a copper lobby or any
other lobby he lies.'"

Several senators objected to this
language and Senator Ashurst after
withdraw his remark.

If backache, scalding urine or frequent urination bother or distress you, or if uric acid in the blood has caused rheumatism, gout or sciatica or you suspect kidney or bladder trouble just write Dr. Pierce at the Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N.Y.; send a sample of urine and describe symptoms. You will receive free medical advice after Dr. Pierce's chemist has examined the urine—this will be carefully done without charge, and you will be under no obligation. Dr. Pierce during many years of experimentation has discovered a new remedy which he finds is thirty-seven times more powerful than lithia in removing uric acid from the system. If you are suffering from backache or the pains of rheumatism, go to your best druggist and ask for a 50-cent box of "Anurie" put up by Dr. Pierce. At the Best Tonight

Bessie Barriecale has a congenial emotional role in this story by Jas. Montgomery and C. Gardner Sullivan. The subject is sex, but it is presented with the usual line staging and direction with a mystery twist that holds your interest from start to finish.

Going to H. Rider Haggard's story, "John Meeson's Will," Bluebird photographs have found a remarkably clever subject for moving picture exploitation and the result will be exhibited at the Best theatre tomorrow with Louise Lovely as the star and Lon Chaney, Jay Belasco and a clever company of Bluebird camera-actors supporting her. Ida May Park has furnished the scenario and Joseph De Grasse directed the production. The conduct of a miserly old publisher, mean as he is rich, toward his only relative, a nephew, whom he disinherits, form the basis of the story. When time passes and the old miser experiences a change of heart, he is ready to make a new will—but at the moment he is cast away on a barren island, shipwrecked and near to death. The most interesting and unusual part of the narrative develops in the manner and method in which Meeson made his will.

Jack Sheppard as a Text.

Jack Sheppard had a great hold upon the imagination of the people of his time. The fact that 200,000 people witnessed his execution at Tyburn on Nov. 18, 1724, is some witness to his grim popularity. But one of the strangest tributes ever paid him was the sermon preached upon him in a London church. "Oh, that ye were all the Jack Sheppard!" began the preacher, to the stupefaction of his flock. He went on to draw a parallel between things of the flesh and those of the soul and to point out that the genius shown in house-breaking might have been bestowed upon "picking the locks of the heart with the nail of repentance."

Flora.

"Have you noticed our flora about here?" asked the professor of botany to the new student.

"If you mean the one with white spots, I have," replied the student who had an eye for girls.—Exchange.

Old Soldiers at State Fair

(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

State Fair Grounds, Hamline, Minn., Sept. 7.—This was old soldiers and pioneers day at the Minnesota state fair.

Returning from their national encampment at Kansas City, just a few days ago, many of the Minnesota contingent of the Grand Army of the Republic, filed into the state fair grounds today, to mingle with Minnesota pioneers as well as Minnesota settlers.

It was a day of reunion, recalling of old experiences, and visiting with friends. Women in the culinary department this afternoon, were told by judges why prizes were awarded as they were. Several more prizes were awarded on the stock and cattle.

A. L. Carpenter, 94, Minnesota pioneer, has a seat of honor at the entrance of the Log Cabin. In spite of his age Carpenter's memory for names and faces is good.

G. S. Pease, Anoka, has attended the fair for twelve years. This year he forgot his credentials and the gate men refused to pass him. He tried to explain but dug up "four bits." He is in charge of legislative headquarters.

Miss Katherine Dyer, St. Paul, is the only girl under 18 entered in the society riding contest.

Many pioneers of the state have registered at the pioneer cabin. The oldest is John H. Home, Hastings, a resident of the state for 78 years.

Automobile collisions with trains have become so numerous that the state highway commission has a booth showing devices to warn tourists of danger points.

Suffragists have a large display at the fair and have secured several signers for the cause.

MEETING TROUBLE.

No matter what cares, anxieties or sorrows may vex or sadden you, do not prove yourself a weakling by going down before them, but show yourself noble in rising above them and molding them to life's purpose. To give up the battle because of injustice or ingratitude or wrongdoing at the hands of others is not manly. Do your duty, fight on, and trust in God.

Noted Southerner Dead.

At the Best Tonight

Bessie Barriscale has a congenial emotional role in this story by Jas. Montgomery and C. Gardner Sullivan. The subject is sex, but it is presented with the usual fine staging and direction with a mystery twist that holds your interest from start to finish.

Going to H. Rider Haggard's story, "John Meeson's Will," Bluebird photoplays have found a remarkably clever subject for moving picture exploitation and the result will be exhibited at the Best theatre tomorrow with Louise Lovely as the star and Lon Chaney, Jay Belasco and a clever company of Bluebird camera-actors supporting her. Ida May Park has furnished the scenario and Joseph De Grasse directed the production. The conduct of a miserly old publisher, mean as he is rich, toward his only relative, a nephew, whom he disinherits, form the basis of the story. When time passes and the old miser experiences a change of heart, he is ready to make a new will—but at the moment he is cast away on a barren island, shipwrecked and near to death. The most interesting and unusual part of the narrative develops in the manner and method in which Meeson made his will.

Jack Sheppard as a Text.

Jack Sheppard had a great hold upon the imagination of the people of his time. The fact that 200,000 people witnessed his execution at Tyburn on Nov. 18, 1724, is some witness to his grim popularity. But one of the strongest tributes ever paid him was the sermon preached upon him in a London church. "Oh, that ye were all like Jack Sheppard!" began the preacher, to the satisfaction of his flock. He went on to draw a parallel between things of the flesh and those of the soul and to point out that the genuine shown in house breaking might have been bestowed upon "picking the locks of the heart with the nail of repentance."

Flora.

"Have you noticed our flora about here?" asked the professor of botany to the new student.

"If you mean the one with white spots, I have," replied the student who had an eye for girls.—Exchange.

WHY VOTE FOR THE CHARTER AMENDMENT

A citizen close in touch with municipal affairs offers the following explanation of the proposed charter amendment which the Dispatch gladly publishes:

"Why, many ask, is the special election called for September 12th to vote on the amendment to the city charter? Is there a real need for it or is it a whim of some few persons self appointed who offer to advise the city how to run its affairs?"

It should be emphatically stated that there is a real need for it—a greater need than the average voter seems to realize. It should be also fully realized that the demand for the amendment came from our elected representatives—our city council—who are very closely in touch with the situation. The city council seeing that our city is going towards bankruptcy petitioned the judges of our district court, to submit a charter amendment which would give the city funds the relief so needed.

The charter commission carefully worked out the amendment and the city council endorsed it heartily. Now it is up to the voters of the city to pass upon it. But what are the specific needs, some ask, and haven't we got along in the past and can't we in the future?

A glance at the statement signed by the finance committee of the council and the finance committee of the charter commission, which is being circulated, tells the reason why it is so imperative. Treasurer Opsahl's interview in last night's Dispatch also tells the need. The city was short $12,768.00 last year. To continue this absolutely means bankruptcy or cutting out things which our city cannot do without and remain a progressive city. If the city fails to meet its obligation and judgments are secured the council will be compelled to make a special assessment as provided by law. This is not what Brainerd wants. Another plan—and the council is considering this—is to cut out the street lights, suspend street work altogether and pare the police force more than it should be. We cannot afford to do this. The cost of these things is not so great but that we can meet the bill.

If a man now pays $10.00 taxes he will be asked to pay from $11.00 to $11.50. If he pays $25.00 he will be asked to pay from $25.00 to $27.50. If he pays $50.00, he will be asked to pay from $55.00 to $57.50 and so on. Can we afford to stop the progress of our city for such an amount? I do not believe it. Our tax rate now is below most progressive cities. For a bigger and better Brainerd, vote yes."

Tomorrow another very important feature of the amendment will be discussed—the safeguarding of the city funds.

The German Army

BY CARL W. ACKERMAN
 (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Berlin, July 1 (By Mail).—The second year of the war will be known in Germany's military history as the year of political strategy. The moves of the military chessboard of Europe have been dictated by international relations. Fighting was framed to help the diplomats.

The goal has been victory where possible and to keep the allies from winning over neutral powers or starting offensives. From this standpoint the year has been as successful as the first year of the war when the military strategy was to beat back the enemy armies in France and Russia. The first year was one of military events for military purposes; the second year one of military movements for political purposes.

An army is not supposed to play politics but in a great war there is always danger of other nations coming in and the strategy of an army must be dictated by the then national aims of the nation. For instance, instead of invading Serbia the armies used there might have been used against Russia, Riga and even Moscow might have been taken. Had this been done, the military move would have been against Russia only, and the effect would not have been great outside that country. But the armies were sent into Serbia. Bulgaria joined the Central Powers and the united offensive kept Roumania and Greece neutral. That campaign solved for many months the vexing Balkan problem.

The situation there since has not materially changed. The allies have occupied Salonika. For months they have had thousands of soldiers there to feed and pay. For the Central Powers this has been a valuable thing because it has further divided the attacking power of the allies. The presence of the allies in Greece, however, has been a permanent invitation to Roumania to join hands with Russia and cut the line of communication between Berlin and Constantinople. If Roumania did break her neutrality it might not be a difficult thing for the allies to bridge the Balkans between Roumania and Greece and perhaps force the fall of Constantinople via Adrianople.

With this possibility continually confronting the diplomats of Europe, with Bucharest excited by the intrigues of the ministers, Roumania was at times on the brink of declaring war. One of these moments was last February. At about the same time the German correspondents at the west front reported that papers had been found indicating that the French were preparing a great offensive on the west front March 15th. Therefore two birds could be downed with one stone. If there was a German offensive on the west front the French forces could be occupied and an offensive from that side of the allies could be postponed. At the same time an impression could be made in Roumania to show that the German army was not at the end of its resources.

Political necessity dictated the battle of Verdun. The initial success of this attack encouraged many people to expect the early fall of the fortress but the French were strongly prepared to resist and the policy of an offensive on a large scale was changed to a "nibbling." This process has been continued for three months, because in the meantime the German correspondents reported that the French had shifted the time for their offensive to May 15th. Since then the German army has attacked Verdun continually and kept a large French reserve force on the ground, preventing a unity of French forces at any other part of the front for an ally offensive.

During the last year the allies have asked: "But what is Germany gaining by all her victories? The farther she invades our lands the more she defeats herself. As long as we control the seas, Germany's military victories can gain her nothing. We are sure to win because we control the seas."

This contention of the allies is worth careful consideration. It Germany gains nothing by her victories on land, the war might as well stop, one might argue. But viewed from the standpoint that this second year of the war has been a year of political strategy, Germany's gains on land have had their diplomatic results. Roumania and Greece at this writing are still neutral. Italy has been administered a blow in the Trentino at a time when France and England were at the height of their lack of interest and confidence in Italy's campaign and when Italy was about to stimulate the public interest in the war by celebration of the first year of Italy's fighting.

If Germany and her allies did not hold so much of the territory of the allies would she be able to get as favorable terms of peace as she will? If the central powers had not attacked and occupied Serbia, could they have made the bids for terms in the Balkans they can make now? If the German army did not occupy Warsaw could the German chancellor state in the Reichstag that Germany will not make peace until there are assurances that Poland will not again fall into the hands of the Russian government? Every mile of land gained by the central powers from the allies can be checked off against the allies control of the seas and if Germany solves her economic problems, the loss of the sea routes will not be felt any more keenly than the loss of Belgium to the king of that country or the occupation of Serbia by the interests of Russia and the Karageorgevich dynasty.

Judging solely from appearances in Berlin and at the front the close of the first two years of the war does not find Germany nor her allies exhausted in a military way. Germany has not yet called out all of her 1916 class, while France has called the 1917 class. If Germany does this her army can be increased at any time over 600,000 men. The summer and fall months may see great battles in more than one war theatre.

PALZER TO TRAIN FLYNN

Perham Man Believed to be Best Training Partner for Rochester Giant

Al Palzer, the Perham, Minn., heavy weight boxer who two years ago was generally conceded to be the one best bet among the white hopes who were trying to annex Jack Johnson's title, has agreed to train Fred Fulton for the Porky Flynn match. Palzer has battled with Flynn in the ring and in the opinion of Frank Force, who manages Fulton, the Perham man is the best training partner who could be lined up to work out with the Rochester giant.

Fulton is rapidly rounding into form and when he meets Porky Flynn of Boston next Friday night at the St. Paul auditorium, the Rochester plasterer will be in the best condition of his life. Fulton realizes just how much a victory in the Flynn fight means to him. He must beat the Bostonian or step back from the sporting spotlight. Then, even after he has won from Flynn—which he expects to do—Fulton must meet Frank Moran and later Jim Coffey in the twin cities before he will be given a chance at Jess Willard's title.

An all star card of boxing bouts in which thirty-four rounds of milling is scheduled and for which popular prices are being charged, will furnish state fair visitors an opportunity seldom known. President Harry Sherman of the twin city boxing clubs—who is a member of the El-Hott and Sherman Birth of a Nation gym company—reduced the price on the all-star for the sole purpose of interesting the state fair visitors. Sherman is a great believer in interesting new followers of a project and as the twin cities will be flooded with out of town visitors during fair week, he scheduled the show for Friday night, September 8, and set a scale of prices, the highest of which is $3 for ringside seats. No doubt every sport lover in the northwest has seen or heard about Fred Fulton but when the big Gopher state athlete steps into that St. Paul ring to meet Flynn next Friday night, it will mark his first Minnesota appearance since he became famous the world over.

Besides the Fulton-Flynn fight for which ordinarily $7.50 would be the charge for the best seats, Mickey Sheridan of Chicago will meet Jack Torres of Mexico City, Mexico, Johnny Creedy of New York will battle with Dan Cummings of Montana and Sam Terrin of St. Paul will meet Young Hale of Indianapolis. The show will start at 8:15 o'clock and tickets can be bought by mail from the Capital City A. C. or at several cigar stores in the twin cities.

The German Navy

BY CARL W. ACKERMAN
 (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Berlin, July 2, (By Mail).—The fall of Grand Admiral von Tirpitz was the chief event in the German navy during the last twelve months of the war.

The changes this event brought in the personnel of the navy, in the navy's influence in politics and in the giving up of the submarine war against merchant ships amount to a revolution. But the chief thing von Tirpitz pounded into the thought and action of everyone connected with the navy remained. That was his aggressiveness. "Strike first and strike hard" was his motto and although the chief has fallen, this motto remains. (Paragraph deleted by censor.)

Von Tirpitz was the originator of the submarine warfare against merchantmen. His chief opponent was the Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg. When the original change in the submarine policy was made last fall, von Tirpitz, who wanted to resign, remained although all his friends as section chief in the navy were removed. The successors were supposed to be "anti-Tirpitz."

One of these new officers I knew very well through personal contact every day in the press department. He came in, inspired with many of von Tirpitz' ideas, but because he was brought in by a new regime he was not overly friendly to the grand admiral. Last March, when von Tirpitz' resignation was accepted by the kaiser, I was in the navy department talking to this official. Von Tirpitz telephoned and asked him to go for a walk in the Tiergarten. A few weeks' contact had made the two intimate friends. The next day I saw von Tirpitz. There was nothing to indicate he had been defeated. He held his head as high as ever. He walked in the same firm, confident way. The same cheerful expression was on his face. He had fought hard and long, fifteen years for a principle—a strong, aggressive navy; and he had been successful. He was confident that the spirit he had hammered into everyone connected with the navy would remain.

It would be a mistake to say that because von Tirpitz fell the navy fell with him. The navy is as strong and aggressive a weapon as ever. As political power it is not so prominent. Tirpitz, since last March, has been in the back ground. His friends have been fighting the chancellor so far without success. Tirpitz' fall cleared the political atmosphere of Germany's internal affairs. It placed von Bethmann-Hollweg firm in the saddle as the chancellor and right hand political adviser of the kaiser. It did not rob the navy of Tirpitz' inspiration. This is indicated most by the fact that the kaiser congratulated von Tirpitz among the first naval officers after the battle off the coast of Denmark. The kaiser and Germany know that Tirpitz made the navy and they are proud of both.

As a military weapon the navy was prepared. Being the second largest, it could not be expected to control the seas or any great part of the oceans against the united fleet of the allies. It could, has and does torment the allies control of the seas.

In three ways the navy has been exceedingly active during the last year of the war:

1. Submarines have destroyed more merchant ships than any navy in any previous war.

Recently I have talked with two high admirals in the navy department. The chief points discussed were the policies of naval activities. One of these officers remarked that the object of the raids on the British coast was to "suck out the British fleet." While England maintained her control of the North Sea, German ships frequently made cruises northward only to find no British warships. Because of the submarine danger they kept to the harbors. But as the admiral pointed out, these raids were at last successful.

(Paragraph deleted by censor.)

I said to one officer one day that the English were claiming the sea victory because the German fleet retired to its harbor.

"The first lesson in naval strategy," he replied, "is to strike first and strike hard and then retire before a stronger enemy. We would have been fools to remain after we had won the battle, to wait until the enemy could bring up reinforcements and defeat us."

Germany does not expect to wrest the control of the seas from the allies during the war but she will damage the British fleet whenever there is a chance. Naval authorities believe Germany will come out of the war with the second largest navy in the world. So Germany's

Shock Absorber for Ford Cars

Some Ford owners are from Missouri. They have seen so many make-believe shock absorbers, they have to be shown that the HASSLER SHOCK ABSORBER is all we claim before they will give it a ten days' trial on their own cars.

To convince some of these skeptics, one of our distributors performed the stunts illustrated above. By driving his Ford equipped with the HASSLER over a trestle and down a flight of steps he showed his passengers that the HASSLER provides easy resilient action, and that it prevents rebound and sideways. But most important he proved the strength and durability of the HASSLER, for the cruel jolts could not break it.

You, of course, don't intend to go touring over trestles and stone steps but you will find a good deal of satisfaction in knowing that with HASSLER SHOCK ABSORBERS on your Ford you can drive easily and safely over the roughest roads and get as much comfort and pleasure out of your car as if it were a big $2000.00 limousine. And you can be sure that your first investment in the HASSLER will be your only investment because these shock absorbers will last as long as your car.

$500.00 in Prizes to Ford Owners

Ask your local dealer all about HASSLER SHOCK ABSORBERS, ride in a Ford equipped with them, then write us in twenty-five words or less why every Ford should have them. WHY VOTE FOR THE CHARTER AMENDMENT

A citizen close in touch with municipal affairs offers the following explanation of the proposed charter amendment which the Dispatch gladly publishes:

"Why, many ask, is the special election called for September 12th to vote on the amendment to the city charter? Is there a real need for it or is it a whim of some few persons self appointed who offer to advise the city how to run its affairs?"

It should be emphatically stated that there is a real need for it—a greater need than the average voter seems to realize. It should be also fully realized that the demand for the amendment came from our elected representatives—our city council—who are very closely in touch with the situation. The city council seeing that our city is going towards bankruptcy petitioned the charter commission, appointed by the judges of our district court, to submit a charter amendment which would give the city funds the relief so needed.

The charter commission carefully worked out the amendment and the city council endorsed it heartily. Now it is up to the voters of the city to pass upon it. But what are the specific needs, some ask, and haven't we got along in the past and can't we in the future?

A glance at the statement signed by the finance committee of the council and the finance committee of the charter commission, which is being circulated, tells the reason why it is so imperative. Treasurer Opsahl's interview in last night's Dispatch also tells the need. The city was short $12,765.00 last year. To continue this absolutely means bankruptcy or cutting out things which our city cannot do without and remain a progressive city. If the city fails to meet its obligation and judgments are secured the council will be compelled to make a special assessment as provided by law. This is not what Brainerd wants. Another plan—and the council is considering this—is to cut out the street lights, suspend street work altogether and pare the police force more than it should be. We cannot afford to do this. The cost of these things is not so great but that we can meet the bill.

If a man now pays $16.00 taxes he will be asked to pay from $11.00 to $11.50. If he pays $25.00 he will be asked to pay from $25.00 to $27.50. If he pays $50.00, he will be asked to pay from $55.00 to $57.50 and so on. Can we afford to stop the progress of our city for such an amount? I do not believe it. Our tax rate now is below most progressive cities. For a bigger and better Brainerd, vote yes."

Tomorrow another very important feature of the amendment will be discussed—the safeguarding of the city funds.

The German Army

BY CARL W. ACKERMAN

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Berlin, July 1 (By Mail).—The second year of the war will be known in Germany's military history as the year of political strategy. The moves of the military chessboard of Europe have been dictated by international relations. Fighting was framed to help the diplomats.

The goal has been victory where possible and to keep the allies from winning over neutral powers or starting offensives. From this standpoint the year has been as successful as the first year of the war when the military strategy was to beat back the enemy armies in France and Russia. The first year was one of military events for military purposes; the second year one of military movements for political purposes.

An army is not supposed to play politics but in a great war there is always danger of other nations coming in and the strategy of an army must be dictated by the then national aims of the nation. For instance, instead of invading Serbia the armies used there might have been used against Russia, Riga and even Moscow might have been taken. Had this been done, the military move would have been against Russia only, and the effect would not have been great outside that country. But the armies were sent into Serbia. Bulgaria joined the Central Powers and the united offensive kept Roumania and Greece neutral. That campaign solved for many months the vexing Balkan problem.

The situation there since has not materially changed. The allies have occupied Salonika. For months they have had thousands of soldiers there to feed and pay. For the Central Powers this has been a valuable thing because it has further divided the attacking power of the allies. The presence of the allies in Greece, however, has been a permanent invitation to Roumania to join hands with Russia and cut the line of communication between Berlin and Constantinople. If Roumania did break her neutrality it might not be a difficult thing for the allies to bridge the Balkans between Roumania and Greece and perhaps force the fall of Constantinople via Adrianople.

With this possibility continually confronting the diplomats of Europe, with Bucharest excited by the intrigues of the ministers, Roumania was at times on the brink of declaring war. One of these moments was last February. At about the same time the German correspondents at the west front reported that papers had been found indicating that the French were preparing a great offensive on the west front March 15th. Therefore two birds could be downed with one stone. If there was a German offensive on the west front the French forces could be occupied and an offensive from that side of the allies could be postponed. At the same time an impression could be made in Roumania to show that the German army was not at the end of its resources.

Political necessity dictated the battle of Verdun. The initial success of this attack encouraged many people to expect the early fall of the fortress but the French were strongly prepared to resist and the policy of an offensive on a large scale was changed to a "nibbling." This process has been continued for three months, because in the meantime the German correspondents reported that the French had shifted the time for their offensive to May 15th. Since then the German army has attacked Verdun continually and kept a large French reserve force on the ground, preventing a unity of French forces at any other part of the front for an ally offensive.

During the last year the allies have asked: "But what is Germany gaining by all her victories? The farther she invades our lands the more she defeats herself. As long as we control the seas, Germany's military victories can gain her nothing. We are sure to win because we control the seas."

This contention of the allies is worth careful consideration. It Germany gains nothing by her victories on land, the war might as well stop, one might argue. But viewed from the standpoint that this second year of the war has been a year of political strategy, Germany's gains on land have had their diplomatic results. Roumania and Greece at this writing are still neutral. Italy has been administered a blow in the Trentino at a time when France and England were at the height of their lack of interest and confidence in Italy's campaign and when Italy was about to stimulate the public interest in the war by celebration of the first year of Italy's fighting.

allies would she be able to get as favorable terms of peace as she will? If the central powers had not attacked and occupied Serbia, could they have made the bids for terms in the Balkans they can make now? If the German army did not occupy Warsaw could the German chancellor state in the Reichstag that Germany will not make peace until there are assurances that Poland will not again fall into the hands of the Russian government? Every mile of land gained by the central powers from the allies can be checked off against the allies control of the seas and if Germany solves her economic problems, the loss of the sea routes will not be felt any more keenly than the loss of Belgium to the king of that country or the occupation of Serbia by the interests of Russia and the Karageorgevich dynasty.

Judging solely from appearances in Berlin and at the front the close of the first two years of the war does not find Germany nor her allies exhausted in a military way. Germany has not yet called out all of her 1916 class, while France has called the 1917 class. If Germany does this her army can be increased at any time over 600,000 men. The summer and fall months may see great battles in more than one war theatre.

HUNTERS ARE AFTER CHICKENS

Two Hundred Licenses Issued at County Auditor's Office Since Season Opened

THE COUNTY BANKS ISSUE THEM

License Blanks Sent Country Banks. Thus Increasing Army of Hunters at the Front

To be a chicken or a duck these days is a precarious sort of life, for an army of hunters is lined up at the front ready to shoot at the first indication of a bird.

So far County Auditor Charles W. Mahlum has issued 200 licenses. But that isn't the whole number mobilized at the front. Every bank in the country in Crow Wing county has license pads and is issuing them too.

Clyde E. Parker got license No. 1. This, however, is no indication that he will get the first chicken.

On motion by S. R. Adair and Walter F. Wieland, John Mahlum was appointed as chairman of the Young Men's Republican Club, an organization assisting the general committee.

MACPHERSON'S STORY GIVEN

Obits to the Statement of Automobile Collision Given in Little Falls Transcript

The Dispatch publishes the following statement received:

According to Roy MacPherson, the Little Falls Transcript's story of the collision between his car and that of Dr. Millsbaugh, is incorrect.

Mr. MacPherson says it was not his fault and that he did not make any statement to that effect, nor that he would settle for the damages to Dr. Millsbaugh's car.

Mr. MacPherson says that he put on his dimmers, but the doctor did not and anyone who has ever driven an auto knows what effect this has on the eyes of the driver who has his head lights dimmed.

As to the doctor's statement that MacPherson's car was going at a high rate of speed, Mr. MacPherson says this also is erroneous which was proven by the fact that the passengers in his car were not even raised from their seats.

"MICHAEL'S"

BUSH MAY GO TO CLEVELAND

Connie Mack's Star Pitcher in a Big Deal, is the Report Received From Boston

MAY HELP THEM WIN PENNANT

Bush's Contract With the Philadelphia Club Runs Out at the End of This Season (By Ed Bang)

Boston, Sept. 6.—Joe Leslie Bush, 1914 world's series hero and star hurler for Connie Mack's Athletics this season, may soon wear a Cleveland uniform. This morning, without announcement, Robert McRoy, business manager of the Cleveland club, came into town. McRoy was asked how he happened to be in Boston and his reply was that he came to "start the Indians on a winning streak."

However, before McRoy arrived, Connie Mack showed up at the Lenox hotel. Connie was also asked his reason for being in Boston when his team is playing at Philadelphia, and Connie's answer was that he was attending a reunion of the class of Cornelius McGillicuddy, the first time in ten years he has been able to do so.

It is known that Connie inquired early this morning for either McRoy or President James C. Dunn of the Indians. He was told neither was in town, but that Manager Fohl was around. Connie said he didn't want to see Fohl.

Later when McRoy arrived, he and Mack held a conference. Both said no deal was on, but there is more than a chance that Bush will be an Indian. There's also a probability that Amos Strunk and Jack Melanis will be sold or traded by Mack.

It is known that Bush's contract with the Philadelphia club runs out at the end of the season. Bush has been quoted as saying that Connie would have to come through with a hefty raise next season or he wouldn't pitch for him. Melanis and Strunk are also dissatisfied.

Some time ago, the Cleveland club made Mack an offer for Bush, but it was passed up. On the recent trip of the Chicago White Sox to Philadelphia, Charlie Comiskey, president of the White Sox, gave Connie a blank check and told Mack to fill in his own figures for Bush. Connie told Comiskey he was through selling players. Now, however, it seems as though he'll let the speed ball star and possibly Melanis and Strunk go.

Bush has been pitching really remarkable ball for the Athletics this year, better than he has ever pitched before. If the Indians could land him, they'd be an almost even money proposition for the pennant this year.

If a deal goes through, players and money will be given for Bush.

E. J. Filiatrault of the Mutual Auto Co., Prepares a Log of the Automobile Tour

GOOD ROADS ALL THE WAY

Entire Trip is a Beautiful One With Plenty of Lakes and Rivers to Add to Beauty of Ride (Duluth News Tribune)

One of the finest of the many wonderful automobile trips possible for Duluth motorists is from here to Brainerd. This is possibly one of the most attractive, yet at the same time the least known. Good roads obtain all the way to Brainerd, which is 132 miles from Duluth.

E. J. Filiatrault of the Mutual Auto company, has prepared a log of the trip:

"For the benefit of those who are not familiar with this highway," said Mr. Filiatrault yesterday, "and who may have occasion to tour the same, an outline of the route and mileage distances is herewith given:

"Duluth to Thompson 20 miles, Duluth to Carlton 21½ miles, Duluth to Cromwell 45 miles, Duluth to Wright 51 miles, Duluth to Tamarack 59 miles, Duluth to McGregor 70 miles, Duluth to Kimberly 89 miles, Duluth to Aitkin 94 miles, Duluth to Deerwood 106 miles, Duluth to Crosby and Ironton 111 miles, Duluth to Brainerd 132 miles.

"The main highway on entering Carlton county to the Aitkin line is known as the Duluth-Moorhead road—a perfect highway built under state supervision.

"The entire trip is a beautiful one and with plenty of lakes and rivers to add to the beauties of this tour. Anyone in Duluth desiring to make a round circuit trip representing a total of 523 miles can continue north from Brainerd to Nisswa, Pequot, Jenkins, Pine River, Mildred, Backus, Akeley, Park Rapids and then through the Itasca park, a most beautiful scenic drive to Bemidji, returning via Cass Lake, Bena, through the National Forest Reserve via Winnibigoshish, Deer River, Grand Rapids, Hibbing, Virginia, and from this point returning either over the Miller Trunk or the Vermillion road.

"Just an ideal four or five day trip easy traveling.

"Few people owning motor cars are familiar with the beauties of a tour through northern Minnesota. It would be well for anyone planning a tour to preserve the clipping showing the outline of this route or circuit tour for future references," said Mr. Filiatrault.

BRAINERD BOY SEEKS REFORM

Former Prosecutor, Thomas W. McMeekin, of St. Paul, Wants Domestic Relations Court

ALSO DEBTOR COURT IN CITY

Small Debtor Cases Foster Crime, said Mr. McMeekin in interview on the Subject

The following interview in the St. Paul Pioneer Press, urging reforms in that city by Attorney Thomas W. McMeekin, will be read with interest by Brainerd people, as Mr. McMeekin is a Brainerd boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. McMeekin.

"The poor and unfortunate of St. Paul are in urgent need of better protection through the police branch of the municipal court," Attorney Thomas W. McMeekin, who resigned Friday as city prosecutor, said yesterday. Mr. McMeekin represented the city three years in police court, and his study of conditions there are the basis of his recommendations for remedial legislation.

St. Paul needs a court of domestic relations, a small debtor's court and a fund to provide maintenance for the families of men sentenced for non-support, so that the neglect by fathers and husbands may be curbed by straight workhouse sentences, the former city prosecutor asserted.

"The suspended sentence cannot be dispensed with, for it has been used long as an efficient deterrent to offenders, especially first offenders, and has proved an excellent weapon for reform," Mr. McMeekin said.

"But I do not believe that it has been a success when invoked in the majority of non-support cases. Very often the husband has repeated the offense immediately and often times added complete desertion to his former neglect. A straight workhouse sentence would act as a curb.

"But the biggest necessity in non-support cases is a fund available for the care of the wife and children, while the husband is in the workhouse. Now imprisonment punishes the wife and children more than the husband."

Attorney McMeekin said he is preparing a bill to that effect which he will have introduced at the next session of the legislature. It will ask for an appropriation by the city to such a fund.

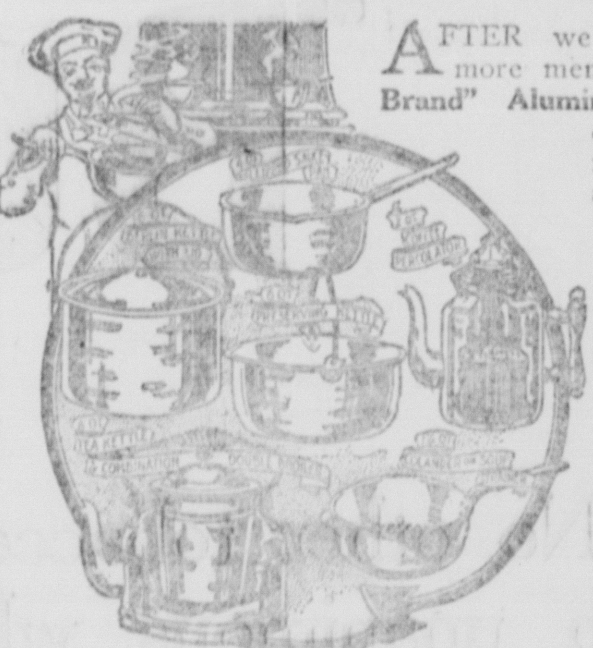

Few days passed during the three years of his regime, the former city prosecutor said, when some mother and wife did not complain to him of neglect. Many times he played King Solomon and was able to reconcile husband and wife, but generally the situation was beyond that.

The city prosecutor's office is a mecca for the poor man who cannot collect debts due him and his companion who is pressed to the wall by a small obligation he is unable to meet, Mr. McMeekin said.

To remedy this condition, a court for small debtors is necessary, the former city prosecutor said. In such a court justice could be done at small expense.

"These small debtor cases foster crime." Attorney McMeekin said.

"The unfortunate applicant for aid becomes desperate when he finds he can't obtain redress, and I have seen many instances in which the man who told his hard luck tale and found he could not obtain relief, has appeared in court, defendant on a charge of theft, assault or disturbing the peace a few days later."

Open Door and a Light. The wives of north country colliers observe a very touching and pathetic custom when an accident occurs in the pit.

Directly it is known to the wife of a collier that an accident has happened in the pit where her husband works and that his fate is uncertain she throws open the house door, and however inclement the weather may be, she keeps the door open and a candle burning in the window night and day till the man is brought home, dead or alive. In some cases the door has remained open and the candle alight several weeks, even months.—London Graphic.

LEAVES FOR FORT SNELLING

Will Shortly Entrain for Texas Border With First Recruit Company from Twin Cities

Just because he was a Swedish subject did not prevent Richard P. Bergman of this city from carrying out his desire to join the Minnesota troops on the Mexican border.

Mr. Bergman, better known as "Dick" Bergman, has made Brainerd his home for the past month. He was the first man to make application for enlistment at the recruiting office in the Best theatre when it opened last Tuesday morning. When told that it would be impossible to enlist unless he had taken out his first citizenship papers he promptly called on Clerk of Court Johnstone and procured the documents. Upon returning to the recruiting office he was accepted.

Within a few days Mr. Bergman will leave this city for Fort Snelling and will shortly entrain for the Texas frontier with the first recruit company to leave the Twin Cities.

One of the finest of the many wonderful automobile trips possible for Duluth motorists is from here to Brainerd. This is possibly one of the most attractive, yet at the same time the least known. Good roads obtain all the way to Brainerd, which is 132 miles from Duluth.

E. J. Filatrault of the Mutual Auto company, has prepared a log of the trip:

"For the benefit of those who are not familiar with this highway," said Mr. Filatrault yesterday, "and who may have occasion to tour the same, an outline of the route and mileage distances is herewith given:

"Duluth to Thompson 20 miles, Duluth to Carlton 27 1/2 miles, Duluth to Cromwell 45 miles, Duluth to Wright 51 miles, Duluth to Tamarack 58 miles, Duluth to McGregor 70 miles, Duluth to Kimberly 89 miles, Duluth to Atkin 94 miles, Duluth to Deerwood 104 miles, Duluth to Crosby and Ironton 111 miles, Duluth to Brainerd 132 miles.

"The main highway on entering Carlton county to the Atkin line is known as the Duluth-Moorhead road—a perfect highway built under state supervision.

"The entire trip is a beautiful one and with plenty of lakes and rivers to add to the beauties of this tour. Anyone in Duluth desiring to make a round circuit trip representing a total of 523 miles can continue north from Brainerd to Nisswa, Pequot, Jenkins, Pine River, Mildred, Backus, Akeley, Park Rapids and then through the Itasca park, a most beautiful scenic drive to Bemidji, returning via Cass Lake, Bemidji, through the National Forest Reserve via Winnishishish, Deer River, Grand Rapids, Hibbing, Virginia, and from this point returning either over the Miller Trunk or the Vermilion road.

"Just an ideal four or five day trip easy traveling.

"Few people owning motor cars are familiar with the beauties of a tour through northern Minnesota. It would be well for anyone planning a tour to procure the clipping showing the outline of this route or circuit tour for future reference," said Mr. Filatrault.

SEEKS REFORM

Former Prosecutor, Thomas W. McMeekin, of St. Paul, Wants Domestic Relations Court

Small Debtor Cases Foster Crime, said Mr. McMeekin in interview on the Subject

The following interview in the St. Paul Pioneer Press, urging reforms in that city by Attorney Thomas W. McMeekin, will be read with interest by Brainerd people, as Mr. McMeekin is a Brainerd boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. McMeekin. (St. Paul Pioneer Press)

"The poor and unfortunate of St. Paul are in urgent need of better protection through the police branch of the municipal court," Attorney Thomas W. McMeekin, who resigned Friday as city prosecutor, said yesterday. Mr. McMeekin represented the city three years in police court, and his study of conditions there are the basis of his recommendations for remedial legislation.

St. Paul needs a court of domestic relations, a small debtor's court and a fund to provide maintenance for the families of men sentenced for non-support, so that the neglect by fathers and husbands may be curbed by straight workhouse sentences, the former city prosecutor asserted.

"The suspended sentence cannot be dispensed with, for it has been used long as an efficient deterrent to offenders, especially first offenders, and has proved an excellent weapon for reform," Mr. McMeekin said.

"But I do not believe that it has been a success when invoked in the majority of non-support cases. Very often the husband has repeated the offense immediately and often times added complete desertion to his former neglect. A straight workhouse sentence would act as a curb.

"But the biggest necessity in non-support cases is a fund available for the care of the wife and children, while the husband is in the workhouse. Now imprisonment punishes the wife and children more than the husband."

Attorney McMeekin said he is preparing a bill to that effect which he will have introduced at the next session of the legislature. It will ask for an appropriation by the city to such a fund.

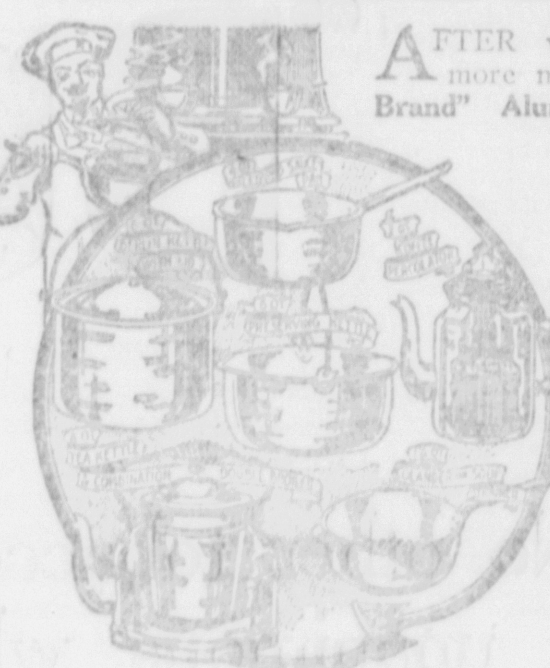

Few days passed during the three years of his regime, the former city prosecutor said, when some mother and wife did not complain to him of neglect. Many times he played King Solomon and was able to reconcile husband and wife, but generally the situation was beyond that.

The city prosecutor's office is a mercy for the poor man who cannot collect debts due him and his companion who is pressed to the wall by a small obligation he is unable to meet, Mr. McMeekin said.

To remedy this condition, a court for small debtors is necessary, the former city prosecutor said. In such a court justice could be done at small expense.

crime? Attorney McMeekin said. "The unfortunate applicant for aid becomes desperate when he finds he can't obtain redress, and I have seen many instances in which the man who told his hard luck tale and found he could not obtain relief, has appeared in court, defendant on a charge of theft, assault or disturbing the peace a few days later."

Open Door and a Light.

The wives of north country colliers observe a very touching and pathetic custom when an accident occurs in the pit.

Directly it is known to the wife of a collier that an accident has happened in the pit where her husband works and that his fate is uncertain she throws open the house door, and, however inclement the weather may be, she keeps the door open and a candle burning in the window night and day till the man is brought home, dead or alive. In some cases the door has remained open and the candle alight several weeks, even months—London Graphic.
